? Warps

Warps are ways to teleport to other player spots (like shops, builds, points of attraction, and more). You can see featured warps and browse existing warps in the /warps menu!

/warps are ways to teleport to other player setups (shops, builds, museums, etc.) You can see featured warps, as well as browse existing warps in the /warps menu.

In the chat window, type /warps. It will open a gui window that shows an oak sign, a red bed, and five featured warps.

Searching for Warps

In the /warps menu, click on the oak sign, which will fill the gui window with all of the public warps on the server. Each warp is represented by icons. Hovering over an icon will show you the name of the warp, how many visits the warp has, and what kind of warp it is. Clicking on the icon will teleport you to the warp.

You can get to /warps in a few other ways:

- In the chat window, type /warp name-of-warp (it has autofill, so feel free to use that to help you find a warp as well!)
- Click a sign that says [Warp] with the warp name under it

Creating a Warp

To create a warp, you will need at least $25K. Please note that you cannot create warps in the end, nether, resource world, spawn, and other public areas of this nature.

In the /warps window, click the red bed. It will open a window that has a crafting table at the bottom. Click the crafting table.

In the chat window, you will be directed to write the name of your warp in chat. Just type the name of your warp. You do not need any commands. It will not send it as a message to everyone. Just type the name of your warp into the chat window.

Once you do this, you will be prompted to confirm warp creation (and get charged $25K). Clicking the green button will send you a notification in chat:

You can then return to the /warps red bed window. Your warp will now appear in one of the blocks above the crafting table. Hover over the warp to confirm the name, and click on it to manage the warp settings.

- ender pearl: teleport to your warp location
- red/lime shulker box: publicity setting: clicking on this will make your warp public so anyone can visit, or private so only allowed players can visit it. If your warp is public, the shulker box will be lime green
- paper: warp sharing: this will allow you to share your warp with specific players. This is really only useful if your warp publicity setting is set to private (red shulker box)
- nametag: warp renaming: this will let you change the name of your warp. You can do this by writing the new name for your warp in the chat. You may need to leave the gui window to get to the chat window. If successful, the chat window will show you a confirmation message

- eye of ender: warp relocate: this will let you move where your warp takes players. It is great if you are trying to move your warp location to a completely different place
- enchanting table: warp type: this will let you set the type of warp. This is really useful if your warp is public. The options are:
  - lime dye: public (generic/not defined)
  - chest: shop
  - bottle of enchanting: grinder
  - firecracker: attraction
  - red bed: town
  - wheat: farm
- ?: Delete your warp (We recommend that you do not do this! You can always make your warp private and rename/relocate it! Don't waste $25K

Featured Warps

In the /warps menu, there are 5 heads featured under the two top buttons.

Each player head belongs to the person whose warp is featured. If you hover over the head, it will tell you the warp name, how many visits it has, and its ranking. Clicking on the head will teleport you to the warp.

Anyone with a warp can promote their warp in this featured warps menu. To do that, you need $25K and wait until one of the featured warp slots are available (if it's available, it will show a Steve head instead of a player's head). Simply click on the free warp slot, and confirm you want to spend $25K to feature your warp. If you have more than one warp, it will show you a list of your warps so you can pick which one you want to feature. Featured warp slots expire in 3 days. Expirations of featured warps are announced in chat, so keep an eye out!
